

Tara Rees

I have been the hepatology specialist nurse for Cardiff & Vale University Health Board since 2003. Over the past 14 years I have set up the first hepatitis community clinic in Wales for patients with hepatitis C and shared my practices with the rest of Wales. I also set up a nurse led paracentesis service for patients with decompensated liver cirrhosis. I have completed my MSc in advanced nursing practice and provide nurse led hepatology clinics where I assess, diagnose, manage and prescribe treatment. I am currently the lead nurse for the Together For Health Liver Disease

Delivery Plan and sub-group for HCC management. My next goal is to improve end of life care for patients with HCC and end stage liver disease.
