

Dr Douglas Thorburn

Dr Thorburn has been a consultant transplant hepatologist since 2003 initially in the liver unit in Birmingham and subsequently at the Royal Free since 2007. His clinical and academic interests are in biliary endoscopy, autoimmune and cholestatic liver diseases and liver transplantation. He has been secretary for BLTG since September 2015.

As clinical director for the liver transplant, hepatobiliary and pancreatic service and hepatology services at the Royal Free Foundation Trust, he has a particular interest in improving clinical outcomes for patients with liver disease, developing networked specialist clinical services and improving patient and staff experience.
